

COP24, Katowice (Pavilion H3)

Regional perspectives on 1.5°C – Central and South America

Wednesday, 5 December (15:00 - 16:30)

Contact: Tania Guillén (Chapter Scientist SR1.5 Chapter 3), Robin Matthews (robin.matthews@universite-paris-saclay.fr)

To present and discuss findings from the Special Report on Global Warming of 1.5°C relevant to Central and South America

COP24, Katowice (Pavilion H3)

Regional perspectives on 1.5°C – Central and South America

Provisional Agenda

15:00-15:05	Opening and welcome	Thelma Krug IPCC Vice-Chair
15:05-15:17	What are the impacts of the 1.5°C global warming in the Latin American region? Presentation of main findings of CH3 and those related to the region	Tania Guillén B. Chapter Scientist SR1.5 Chapter 3
15:17-15:29	Feasibility assessment: mitigation and adaptation options in Latin America Examples of adaptation and mitigation options in the region	Débora Ley LA SR1.5 Chapter 4
15:29-15:36	What the 1.5°C report means for the region? Governmental perspective about the policy implications of the special report	Antonio Cañas Ministry of Environment and National Resources - El Salvador
15:36-15:43	1.5°C Special Report: Rethinking the future of the region How to take science to action in the region?	Sandra Guzmán GFLAC (Latin American and Caribbean Group on Climate Finance)
15:43-15:18	Panel discussion	Moderator: Thelma Krug  Panelists: Antonio Cañas, Tania Guillén, Sandra Guzmán, Deborah Ley
15:18-16:20	Closing remarks	Thelma Krug