Short description (max 250 words):

The involvement of Early Career Scientists (ECS) with the work of the IPCC is important. There are different ways/roles in which ECS have and can get involved in the preparation of the Sixth Assessment Cycle (AR6) of the IPCC. In this session, the possible ways to get engaged will be presented. Different networks will introduce themselves and present their work. A panel discussion with questions from the audience will conclude the session.
